

THE ROLE

Developer

We're looking for a passionate and experienced full stack .NET developer to join one of our product development teams. The ideal candidate will love sharing their understanding of developing modern asp.net applications with their team.

They'll have experience in delivering valuable software in an agile way, collaborating closely with our skilled and dedicated product owners. We're always looking for better ways of delivering value to our customers, you'll be a part of a team that shapes the way we do this.

Technology

Our continually evolving platform is currently based on ASP.NET MVC 5, we are working on a migration over to .NET 6. We appreciate the value of clean code and unit testing and are looking for people to help us improve in this area. The product you'll be working on is a responsive web application supported by a native mobile app delivered in Xamarin. All our solutions run and can be deployed using our build server.

C# / JavaScript (ideally Vue or Angular) / MS SQL / CSS (bootstrap) / Xamarin (bonus points)

Company & Culture

Since the pandemic, the working world has been shaken up with many people continuing to work remotely. This is certainly the case here at Rippl and due to increased productivity levels, we are happy to give our team the flexibility as to whether they use a dedicated desk in our office, work from home, or create a blend of the two. You can expect a busy client-focused working environment, combined with a supportive team that doesn't take themselves too seriously, ensuring great job satisfaction.

We like to practice what we preach and as a provider of an employee engagement solution to some of the world's biggest brands, we use the programme day in and day out ourselves. Great work is regularly recognised and rewarded. In addition, our social committee work tirelessly throughout the year delivering a fun and varied calendar of events.

What's on offer at Rippl:

- A friendly, supportive and inclusive working environment
- Flexible and autonomous working
- 35 hour working week & 27 days annual leave
- Workplace pension @ 4% employee and 4% employer
